Thoughts of suicide are intense when I wake up like this, and I feel (as I read in earlier comments) like my head is struggling to catch up with my body.

They may play a role in aging, as well as the development of a number of health conditions, including heart disease and cancer.